Ultrasonic Cleaning

What is ultrasonic cleaning and how does it work?

High frequency sound waves are used to produce more than 40,000 alternating high and low pressures per second. As these waves travel through a specially formulated cleaning solution, millions of microscopic bubbles form and violently implode. This process, known as cavitation, creates a scrubbing action capable of cleaning up to 16 times more efficiently than hand scrubbing. In minutes, all body fluids and foreign particles are removed, even from the tightest grooves, cracks and interior surfaces of the instrument being cleaned.

JorVet ultrasonic cleaning systems represent the most advanced technology in ultrasonic cleaning available today.

Feline Blood Transfusion

A challenging task made easier

Feline anemia can be an indication for blood transfusions. Feline blood transfusion can be a difficult procedure due to the small patient weight and limited range of transfusion products available for smaller patients. Jorvet is now offering a range of small volume collection bags with anticoagulant already added.

Anemia can develop either acutely or chronically:

- Non regenerative anemia i.e. FeLV
- Infectious disease such as FIA (Hemobartonella)
- Traumatic blood loss
- Heavy parasite load, fleas or intestinal parasites
- Hemolysis from toxins like acetaminophen
- Malnutrition.

To mention a few common causes of feline anemia.

Previous Problem:

Existing feline blood collection products required the addition of anticoagulants just before collection in an “open” system. The amount of anticoagulant needed was an estimate that could be wrong with too much or too little. JorVet’s new blood collection bags are smaller in size with pre-attached 20g collection needle or a “closed system”.

Collection Overview or Guidelines:

Donors should be healthy individuals with a weight of 10lbs or 5kg.

They should be blood typed, test negative for common feline diseases such as FeLV and current on vaccinations.

Donors can safely give up to 10ml/lb but the standard procedure is 50ml.

The donor should be sedated and jugular area clipped and prepped. A quality venipuncture is essential.

Equine Blood Transfusion

Just made easier

The standard blood transfusion in equine medicine is not a common procedure. The large volumes needed to be effective can be a challenge to collect and administer. This is compounded by the lack of equine specific transfusion materials to make the process easier and simpler to do.

Traditional equine blood collection /transfusion requires a large collection bag, than the separate addition of anticoagulants at collection time.

JorVet now offers large collection bags with ACD anticoagulant already provided in the bag plus an integral attached 14g needle in two bag sizes.

In addition, equine plasma can have a life saving role in newborn foals in conditions such as the “failure of passive antibody transfer” and neonatal isoerythrolysis.
